A new study led by University of Chicago psychologists and published in Science shows Bedtime Math significantly boosts kids' math performance. Within just one school year, kids who did Bedtime Math improved their math achievement on average by three months more than children who didn't. Better yet, kids of the most math-anxious parents who chose to do Bedtime Math had gains of half a school year.

How do we do it?

We make math part of the family routine. Every day, we serve up a quick bite of wacky math just for fun. It's nothing like school. Parents can sign up by email, on our website, and on our free app. Whether it's flamingos, ninjas or pillow forts, kids can see the math in their favourite topics. No logins. No drilling. No scores. It takes only 5 minutes a day, and kids love it. Please visit the website : <http://bedtimemath.org> to join.
